Chapter 1

In the beginning, the LORD decided it was a time of creation. Thus, the Earth was forged from the LORD's will, and time came into existence.

The Earth and the Sky were one and the same, but the LORD wanted them to be apart, and HIS will was made. The LORD wanted water in the world HE created, and thus, water came into existence. He then noticed it was good. However, the land was deserted, and nothing ever came out of it. No life could be found. HE commanded the creatures of the underworld to come out of their non-existence and they came into existence. They lived underwater, with no light other than the light of the LORD. The LORD then commanded the Sun to appear in the horizon, and he soon followed HIS command. With the first sunrise, HE commanded green vegetation of all kinds and shapes to come out of the ground, and so they obeyed. And the LORD saw it was good.

The Earth thus became inhabited by plantlife and sea creatures. But the LORD observed that the land remained with no animal life of its own. And so the LORD took the animals from the bottom of the Ocean and tried to place them on the Land. Some of them obeyed, and became the first walkers of the Earth. Some disobeyed HIS will, and for that he banished them to the sea, where they will live and die, them and all of their offspring, till the end of time. Soon, land animals sprung into existence, of every kind and shape. And the LORD saw it was good.

The sky cried out, and the LORD heard its cry. There was no life that could fly close to the sky, and thus the sky was empty. The LORD took again animals from the Ocean, and some of the water, and tried placing them into the sky. None of them obeyed HIS will, and for that he banished them to the bottom of the Sea, for they have betrayed the LORD once again. However, the water obeyed HIM, and for that HE promised the water to return from time to time, as well as allowing the water to return to the sky, from which it would visit till the end of time. And the LORD saw it was good.

And the cry of the sky continued, until the animals from the land cried with it, and took fly; those who could. And so the first animals started flying, and the LORD saw them fly, and blessed them with eternal flight, until the end of time. And the LORD saw it was good, since it allowed the sky to rest and stop its cry.

Night time fell, and the whole earth started crying, and the LORD saw what was happening. The Sun was nowhere to be found, and the living beings and the beasts and the depths of the ocean and the sky itself were scared. To calm every living being and beast, the LORD placed a part of HIMSELF in the sky; the Moon. And a piece of the LORD watches and protects the Earth at Night every day, till the end of time. And the LORD saw it was good.

The Sun came back again to the Earth, and the LORD saw the Earth finished, with the Land and the Oceans, the Sky and the Depths finished. It was full of life, and everything was perfect because HE was perfect.

Yet, there was no man to roam the Earth, and the LORD was alone. So, HE told everyone on the Heavens; and spoke: "Let the Man exist, for he shall be like one of us, in our own image and understanding". And man and woman came to be, for the first time in existence, till the end of time. And the LORD saw it was good.

Chapter 2

The LORD took the dust from the Earth's Land and spoke to it: "Let the man be made out of this, and let the man be a living beast. In my own shape and understanding I command the man to exist". And the man was made from dust of the Land, and the man became a living beast. And the LORD saw it was good.

Then the LORD showed the man the home HE made for him, and the LORD told the man to name everything he found. And the man obeyed HIM, for the LORD was his FATHER. So those were the days of the man, and the man; however, could not find himself a companion. Even after naming every living beast, every flying beast and every swimming beast, no beast could be a companion for the man. And the LORD saw it was not good.

One day the LORD chose to be, the LORD told the man to travel the world, and he obeyed. While traveling, the LORD came back to the Land HE took the dust to make the man. HE reached and took with HIS hand another amount of dust from the Land. And he spoke: "Let the female of the man's species be made out of this, and let the woman be a living beast. In my own shape and understanding, just as the man was made, I command the woman to exist". And the woman was made from the dust of the Land, just like the man, and she thus became a living beast. And the LORD saw it was good.

Once the man came from his journey, he was still with no companion, for he could not find a suitable one for him. The LORD came out and greeted him, and presented him with the woman. And the man fell on his knees before the woman, and spoke amazed: "You shall be my companion, for you are woman, and for I am man. Let us be one, and let us be together till the end of time". And so the woman and the man became close, and became companions till the end of time. And the LORD spoke to them: "You shall be the father and mother of whoever comes into existence from now on. Let there be more in your shape and understanding, just as I created you from my own shape and understanding. Reproduce like the beasts of the land, and the beasts of the sky and the beasts of the depths; take care of them as this will be your responsibility till the end of time". The man and the woman proclaimed their vows, and became close, and they obeyed the LORD. And the LORD blessed them, and the LORD saw it was good.

When it was the proper time, the man and the woman became parents, and the woman gave birth to two healthy boys. When the time came again, she gave birth to two healthy girls. This was the second generation.

And the humans soon became numerous, and the second generation grew into the third and fourth generation; and they into four other generations and they into eight more generations; and soon the Earth became completely inhabited by the children of the man and the woman.
